Did You Eat at the Mobile Food Truck Event?

"Fly Me To The Food" is a new weekly event in San Carlos to be held at the Hiller Aviation Museum.

Gaining momentum from exposure on national channels like the Food Network, the gourmet food truck movement is on the rise in the Bay Area, and folks from all over the Peninsula came down Wednesday to try out the food and festivities.

Next week, food trucks Nom Nom, the Speedy Panini, Ciao Bella, Old Port Lobster Shack, Whisk and Senor Sesig will be on hand dishing out delicious food.

For more information about the event, visit <http://the-mobile-gourmet.com/wordpress/>.

Did you try it out? What truck did you try and how was it? Let us know in the comments!

I did! What a great concept - maybe a little gimmicky and not necessarily cheap, but it's good food, good selection, and a good vibe. Hiller is particularly accommodating with some traffic control, tables and chairs, etc. Nom Nom better improve their system though - it took my coworkers 45 minutes to wait in line and get their food. I opted for the lobster roll and it was quick.
